

Home-School Connection

Word Workout

WORDS TO KNOW

attorney colonel postpone qualify
representative satisfactory submit legislature

Pairing Up Let's talk about the meaning of each word. Then we can pair two words and use them in one sentence. If we paired words such as judge and apple pie, we could make a sentence such as, "The judge ate a big piece of apple pie."

SPELLING WORDS

ideas poet riot video piano
diary radio fluid genuine rodeo
meteor cruel casual meander diameter
fuel patriot ruin diet trial

Vowels Galore I'll give you a word to spell. Before you spell it, tell me the vowels that are together. For example, in the word genuine, the letters u and i are together.

Dear Family Member:

When Esther Morris Headed West tells about a woman who moved out West in the 1860s. Mrs. Morris lived in Wyoming and fought for women's right to vote. There are many facts in this story because Mrs. Morris was a real person. The author has opinions, however. Statements such as "Mrs. Morris had no hankering for power or highfalutin titles" are the author's opinions.

This Week's Skills

Comprehension: fact and opinion

Vocabulary: dictionary/pronunciation

Spelling/Phonics: vowels and syllables

Name _____

(fold here)
© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

Can I Quote You?

Let's read "Breakfast Club." We can decide what are facts and what are opinions in the passage.

Breakfast Club

"I hate oatmeal," Derek yelled. Derek was only three years old, so he yelled a lot.

"It doesn't matter to me," his brother Jake said. "But oatmeal is healthy; it's good for you. If you don't want to eat it, just be quiet, okay?"

Caroline, who was the boys' sister, and knew everything, interrupted: "I guess it doesn't matter, Derek. But if you don't eat your oatmeal, you won't grow. You'll stay three feet tall for the rest of your life."

Of course, that made Derek cry. The whole point of being three was to get bigger—as big as Jake.

Derek whispered to Jake, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

"I think you're mean," Jake glared at Caroline.

"No, I'm not," said Caroline. "I just happen to know that eating food helps kids grow."

"Wow, look at the time," said Jake. "It's already seven-thirty. We better run or the bus driver will have a fit." Jake yelled at Caroline as he ran for his books.

"I go to school, too," Derek wailed.

"Don't worry. Nursery school doesn't start until nine o'clock." Caroline said. "Mom's coming down the stairs right now."

Derek whispered, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

Conexión con el hogar

Ejercicio de palabras

PALABRAS DE VOCABULARIO

attorney colonel postpone qualify
representative satisfactory submit legislature

Emparejar Hablemos acerca del significado de cada palabra. Emparejemos dos palabras y usémoslas en una oración. Si emparejamos dos palabras como judge y apple pie, podríamos escribir esta oración: The judge ate a big piece of apple pie.

PALABRAS DE ORTOGRAFÍA

ideas poet riot video piano
diary radio fluid genuine rodeo
meteor cruel casual meander diameter
fuel patriot ruin diet trial

Vocales a granel Te voy a dar una palabra para deletrear. Antes de deletrearla, dime qué vocales están juntas. Por ejemplo, en genuine, las vocales u e i están juntas.

Queridos familiares:

When Esther Morris Headed West narra acerca de una mujer que se mudó al Oeste en la década de 1860. La señora Morris vivía en Wyoming y luchaba por el derecho al voto de la mujer. En este relato hay muchos hechos porque la señora Morris era una persona de la vida real. Sin embargo, el autor tiene sus opiniones. Una afirmación como la siguiente es una opinión del autor: Mrs. Morris had no hankering for power or highfalutin titles.

Destrezas de la semana

Comprensión: hechos y opiniones

Vocabulario: diccionario/pronunciación

Ortografía/Fonética: vocales y sílabas

Nombre _____

(fold here)
© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

¿Puedo citar tu frase?

Leamos Breakfast Club. Podemos decidir cuáles son los hechos y cuáles son las opiniones en este fragmento.

Breakfast Club

"I hate oatmeal," Derek yelled. Derek was only three years old, so he yelled a lot.

"It doesn't matter to me," his brother Jake said. "But oatmeal is healthy; it's good for you. If you don't want to eat it, just be quiet, okay?"

Caroline, who was the boys' sister, and knew everything, interrupted: "I guess it doesn't matter, Derek. But if you don't eat your oatmeal, you won't grow. You'll stay three feet tall for the rest of your life."

Of course, that made Derek cry. The whole point of being three was to get bigger—as big as Jake.

Derek whispered to Jake, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

"I think you're mean," Jake glared at Caroline.

"No, I'm not," said Caroline. "I just happen to know that eating food helps kids grow."

"Wow, look at the time," said Jake. "It's already seven-thirty. We better run or the bus driver will have a fit." Jake yelled at Caroline as he ran for his books.

"I go to school, too," Derek wailed.

"Don't worry. Nursery school doesn't start until nine o'clock." Caroline said. "Mom's coming down the stairs right now."

Derek whispered, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

Koneksyon lakay ak lekòl

Egzèsis sou mo

MO POU KONNEN

attorney colonel postpone qualify
 representative satisfactory submit legislature

De pa de Annou pale konsènan siyifikasyon chak mo. Ansuit nou ka mete mo yo de pa de epi itilize yo nan yon fraz. Si nou mete ansanm de mo tankou judge ak apple pie, nou ka fè yon fraz tankou "The judge ate a big piece of apple pie."

MO ÒTOGRAF

ideas poet riot video piano
 diary radio fluid genuine rodeo
 meteor cruel casual meander diameter
 fuel patriot ruin diet trial

Vwayèl agogo Mwen pral baw yon mo pou eple. Anvan w eple l, di m vwayèl ki ansanm yo. Pa egzanp, nan mo genuine, lèt u ak i ansanm.

(fold here)
 © Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

Chè manm fanmi :

When Esther Morris Headed West pale konsènan yon fanm ki te demenaje nan zòn Lwès nan ane 1860 yo. Madam Morris te abite nan Wyoming epi li te konbat pou fanm ka gen dwa pou vote. Genyen anpil fè nan istwa sa a paske madam Morris se te yon moun reyèl. Men, otè a genyen kèk opinyon. Kèk deklarasyon tankou "Mrs. Morris had no hankering for power or highfalutin titles" se opinyon otè a.

Teknik pou semèn sa a

Konpreyansyon : fè ak opinyon

Vokabilè : diksyonè/pwononsyasyon

Òtograf/Fonik : vwayèl ak silab

Non _____

Èske m ka site sa w di a ?

Annou li "Breakfast Club." Nou ka deside ki sa ki se fè epi ki sa ki se opinyon nan pasaj la.

Breakfast Club

"I hate oatmeal," Derek yelled. Derek was only three years old, so he yelled a lot.

"It doesn't matter to me," his brother Jake said. "But oatmeal is healthy; it's good for you. If you don't want to eat it, just be quiet, okay?"

Caroline, who was the boys' sister, and knew everything, interrupted: "I guess it doesn't matter, Derek. But if you don't eat your oatmeal, you won't grow. You'll stay three feet tall for the rest of your life."

Of course, that made Derek cry. The whole point of being three was to get bigger—as big as Jake.

Derek whispered to Jake, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

"I think you're mean," Jake glared at Caroline.

"No, I'm not," said Caroline. "I just happen to know that eating food helps kids grow."

"Wow, look at the time," said Jake. "It's already seven-thirty. We better run or the bus driver will have a fit." Jake yelled at Caroline as he ran for his books.

"I go to school, too," Derek wailed.

"Don't worry. Nursery school doesn't start until nine o'clock." Caroline said. "Mom's coming down the stairs right now."

Derek whispered, "Tell her I ate my oatmeal, okay?"

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill