

Home-School Connection

Word Workout

WORDS TO KNOW

atmosphere available contact damages
 destruction hurricanes property surge

Weather or Not Let's make up a weather report using the words above.

SPELLING WORDS

future	searcher	feature	fracture
gesture	legislature	mixture	nature
pasture	pleasure	azure	stretcher
treasure	butcher	lecture	creature
measure	moisture	rancher	pressure

What's the Ending? Each spelling word ends either in ure or in cher. I'll read a word, and you tell me whether it ends in ure or cher. Then you can spell the word for me.

Dear Family Member:

Hurricanes can cause terrible destruction. In the story Hurricanes, I'm learning how tropical storms form and the differences between them. The author of this article describes the hurricanes in a way that makes them seem very real. As I read I'll look for words and phrases the author uses to make the text come to life.

This Week's Skills

Comprehension: description

Vocabulary: multiple-meaning words

Spelling/Phonics: pronouncing end syllables

Name _____

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill (fold here)

Weather Report

Let's read about the weather conditions in the four locations below. Together, we can write a descriptive report for the TV news.

It's spring in the city. The grass is green, the trees are budding, and the flowers are blooming. Birds have returned. The weather radar indicates that there will be a spring shower, but it's not your typical spring shower. It will be raining cats and dogs—literally!

It's summer. Daily temperatures often reach 108 degrees Fahrenheit. But the weather radar tells a different story today. A cold air front is moving down from Canada, bringing freezing temperatures and snow! That's right, snow!

It's fall. The weather radar indicates a storm is arriving. The instruments show that the storm is a hailstorm. The hailstones might be as large as baseballs.

Gentle breezes are about to give way to strong winds. According to the National Weather Bureau, the wind is so strong that it will sweep people off their feet.

Conexión con el hogar

Ejercicio de palabras

PALABRAS DE VOCABULARIO

atmosphere available contact damages
 destruction hurricanes property surge

El clima Escribamos un reporte meteorológico usando las palabras de arriba.

PALABRAS DE ORTOGRAFÍA

future	searcher	feature	fracture
gesture	legislature	mixture	nature
pasture	pleasure	azure	stretcher
treasure	butcher	lecture	creature
measure	moisture	rancher	pressure

¿Cuál es la terminación? Cada palabra de ortografía termina ya sea en ure o en cher. Voy a leer una palabra y tú me dirás si termina en ure o en cher. Luego deletrea la palabra.

Queridos familiares:

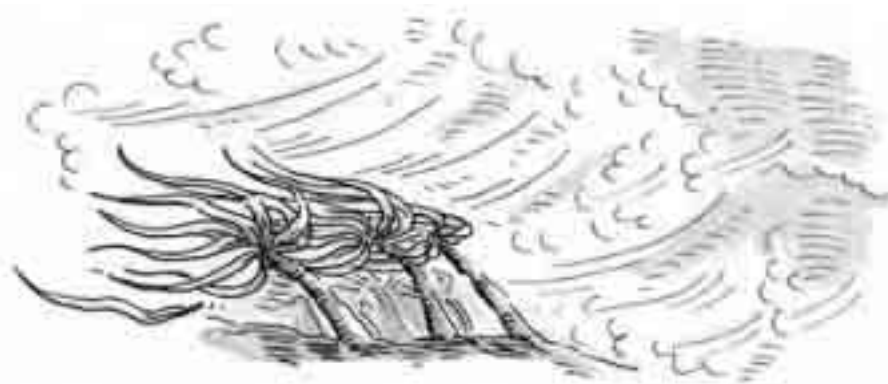

Los huracanes pueden provocar una destrucción terrible. En el artículo Hurricanes, estoy aprendiendo cómo se forman las tormentas tropicales y las diferencias que existen entre ellas. El autor de este artículo describe los huracanes de una manera que los hace parecer reales. Mientras leo, busco palabras y frases que el autor usa para hacer que el texto cobre vida.

Destrezas de la semana

Comprensión: descripción

Vocabulario: palabras con varios significados

Ortografía/Fonética: pronunciar las sílabas finales

Nombre _____

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill (fold here)

Reporte meteorológico

Leamos acerca de las condiciones climáticas en los cuatro lugares de abajo. Juntos, podemos dar un reporte descriptivo para las noticias de televisión.

It's spring in the city. The grass is green, the trees are budding, and the flowers are blooming. Birds have returned. The weather radar indicates that there will be a spring shower, but it's not your typical spring shower. It will be raining cats and dogs—literally!

It's summer. Daily temperatures often reach 108 degrees Fahrenheit. But the weather radar tells a different story today. A cold air front is moving down from Canada, bringing freezing temperatures and snow! That's right, snow!

It's fall. The weather radar indicates a storm is arriving. The instruments show that the storm is a hailstorm. The hailstones might be as large as baseballs.

Gentle breezes are about to give way to strong winds. According to the National Weather Bureau, the wind is so strong that it will sweep people off their feet.

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill

Koneksyon lakay ak lekòl

Egzèsis sou mo

MO POU KONNEN

atmosphere available contact damages
 destruction hurricanes property surge

Annou pale sou klima a Annou fè yon rapò sou klima a avèk mo ki anwo yo.

MO ÒTOGRAF

future	searcher	feature	fracture
gesture	legislature	mixture	nature
pasture	pleasure	azure	stretcher
treasure	butcher	lecture	creature
measure	moisture	rancher	pressure

Ki tèminezon mo a ? Chak mo òtograf tèmine swa avèk ure swa avèk cher. Mwen pral li yon mo, epi ou pral di m si wi ou non li tèmine avèk ure oswa cher. Ansuit ou ka eple mo a pou mwen.

Chè manm fanmi :

Siklòn ka koze destriksyon ki tèrib. Nan istwa Hurricanes, m ap aprann ki jan tanpèt twopikal yo fòme epi ki diferans ki genyen ant yomenm. Otè atik sa a dekri siklòn yo yon fason ki fè yo sanble reyèl anpil. Pandan m ap li mwen pral chèche mo ak ekspresyon otè a itilize pou fè tèks la pran vi.

Teknik pou semèn sa a

Konpreyansyon : deskripsyon

Vokabilè : mo ki gen plizyè siyifikasyon

Òtograf/Fonik : pwononse silab final yo

Non _____

© Macmillan/McGraw-Hill (fold here)

Rapò sou tan an

Annou li konsènan kondisyon klima a nan kat lokalite ki anba a. Ansanm, nou ka ekri yon rapò deskriptif pou nouvèl nan televizyon.

It's spring in the city. The grass is green, the trees are budding, and the flowers are blooming. Birds have returned. The weather radar indicates that there will be a spring shower, but it's not your typical spring shower. It will be raining cats and dogs—literally!

It's summer. Daily temperatures often reach 108 degrees Fahrenheit. But the weather radar tells a different story today. A cold air front is moving down from Canada, bringing freezing temperatures and snow! That's right, snow!

It's fall. The weather radar indicates a storm is arriving. The instruments show that the storm is a hailstorm. The hailstones might be as large as baseballs.

Gentle breezes are about to give way to strong winds. According to the National Weather Bureau, the wind is so strong that it will sweep people off their feet.

